Something worth considering...

Are you sitting comfortably?
...then let me tell you a story:

Miss Hilda Jones had many nieces and nephews; she was saddened when they came to visit her and seemed to have no knowledge of the stories of Jesus in the Bible that had so delighted her as a child. The little boy whose picnic lunch had transformed the situation of the hungry crowd; the lost coin; the blind man whose sight had been restored; and so many others.

Miss Jones had been a Sunday School teacher for many years, but it now seemed that children were not taken to church any more by their parents. She was very sad about this. Then she heard about the Brentwood Schools Christian Worker Trust.

She was delighted to discover that workers from the Trust were welcomed into schools on a regular basis. Being where the children were, and being able to take assemblies and lessons together with them, meant they were able to share the same gospel stories that had meant so much to her when she was a child.

So, from time to time she gave small donations to the Trust. She had very little in the way of excess income; however, she gave considerable thought as to how, when she eventually died, she may be able to do something about this.

After much prayer she decided to bequeath a certain proportion of her few assets, including a share of her estate, to the Trust. This made her feel very happy as she was contributing in some way to the future of the little ones she cared so much about.

I wonder, could this possibly apply to you perhaps? Now that's something worth considering...
